FALL GIVEN YEAR AND $100,000 FINE

Released On Bond Pending Appeal

Former Cabinet Officer Hears Sentence Passed

Is Given One Third of Extreme Penalty Court Says

WILL TAKE APPEAL

Free On Bond Pending Hearing By Higher Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former cabinet officer convicted of receiving a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doherty, was today sentenced to one year in prison and fined $100,000 after a motion for a new trial had been overruled by Justice Hitz in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Defense attorneys made a brief motion for a new trial and the proceedings were over in a few minutes. Justice Hitz said that had Fall been in good physical condition he would have imposed the full sentence but in view of his health would have made the sentence suspended if it were to take effect at once. Bond for appeal was fixed and promptly made and Fall left the courtroom with friends.

One-third of Sentence Under the law, the maximum sentence which could have been given the former cabinet official is exactly three times that imposed or a $300,000 fine and three years imprisonment in a Federal prison.

Two Wounded By Coast Guardsmen

No Liquor or Guns Found On Boat Attacked By Officers.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Two men were shot and a third arrested yesterday in the capture of Lake Erie by Coast Guard patrol boat CG-9000 of the motor cruiser Butterly, formerly named the Unions, and to have been used in carrying liquor from Canada to United States ports. No firearms or liquor were found aboard.

Coast guard officials said the Butterly had fought two battles this past summer with the patrol fleet on Lake Ontario, one near Charlotte and the other off Oswego, N. Y., but because her hull is smeared in steel plates, the craft always had eluded capture.

The wounded men under guard today at a Buffalo hospital, were reported to be in a serious condition. They admitted themselves as Jack Smith, 42, Detroit, Mich., and William Moore, 35, Laurel, Mont. The man under arrest is Lloyd Delano, 35, of Lockport.

Delano denied there was liquor aboard the Butterly and said that neither he nor his companions were in the rum trade. He said the Coast Guard boat fired on them without warning.

Captain Wilcox's report said that although a fusillade of rifle fire was directed toward the fleeing Butterly, no shots were fired in return.

Captain Wilcox said that he first sighted the Butterly off shore, about 15 miles north of Danbury. He said he hailed the boat, ordering it to halt, but it swerved and headed for Sturgeon Point, N. Y.

Delano was assigned before United States Commissioner Newell Timmerman late today on a charge of failing to stop for search when ordered to do so by a government vessel. The two wounded members of the crew will face the same charge after their recovery.

He'll Head New French Cabinet

A "dark horse" in French politics, Etienne Clementel, above, president of the senate finance commission, has been invited by President Gaston Doumergue to form a new government. Aristide Briand, many times premier of France, had previously declined a similar invitation.

U. C. V. Commander Resents Flag Shur

Will Not March With G. A. R. Unless Carry Stars and Bars.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 1.—Declaring that Edwin J. Foster, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic had "completely blown himself out of water," by proposal that the Confederate veterans march with the Union veterans without displaying the Confederate flag, Gen. R. A. Sneed, commander of the United Confederate Veterans, said here today that he would reject the invitation.

The invitation contained in a letter from the Bostonian to Sneed, reads:

"So far as I know there can be but a condition which stands in the way of our coming together, and that is, for you, as head of your organization, to pledge to us that the Star and Bars, your Confederate flag, shall have no place in the parade but that you will march under the Stars and Stripes."

ORDER FOR COUNTY

Is Effort To Prevent A Change of Venue When Case Is Called

LUBBOCK, Tex., Nov. 1.—(AP)—All papers in Lubbock county are restrained from printing the testimony taken in a habacs corpus hearing today of Clay Lester, indicted for wife murder in an order signed in District Court by Judge Clark Mulligan.

The move is believed to be an attempt to prevent a change of venue, where Lester's case is called for trial, probably on Monday next.

The order specifically named the Morning Avalanche and the Evening Journal. Lubbock's two dailies though all papers in the county are included.

Hallowe'en Goes Off Quietly Here

Youngsters In Fantastic Garb Parade But Pranks Are Harmless.

There was a noticeable absence of mischief in the pranks the Hallowe'en revelers staged last night. For the most part they just donned fantastic garb and staged an impromptu parade or two in the downtown district, and indulging in a few harmless Hallowe'en pranks.

Many business men or housewives, forewarned by past experience, took everything movable and placed in safely indoors before closing up for the night. Mayor Boyett had appealed to the youngsters to not do any malicious injury to property and they gave heed to his request, with the result the night was one of the least exciting of many Hallowe'en's.

Circuit Court On for Next Week

Hamilton Murder Case Goes Over Until April Term

CRiminal division of Hempstead county circuit court convened for a day and a half this week at Washington under Special Judge W. H. Arnold.

Court opened Thursday morning and heard the jury trial of Sam Hockley, charged with selling liquor. Hockley was acquitted.

The Hamilton murder case, scheduled for trial this term, was continued until April. Legal officers had returned to missing witnesses here, expecting the case to go on this week.

The jury commissioners, E. S. Greening, S. F. Leslie and G. S. Samuels, reported to the court for the next term, Friday morning, and Judge Arnold then recessed court until next Monday morning. There will be at least another week of cases it was said at Washington.

Minnesota Man In Mabel's Old Place

Succeeds Woman As Head of Enforcement Bureau

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—G. A. Youngquist, attorney general of Minnesota, has been selected by President Hoover to succeed Mrs. Habel Walker Hillebrand, a assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement.

Mr. Youngquist, who was born in Sweden and whose home is in Crookston, Minn., is now in Washington and will take office in the near future. His name is expected to be transmitted to the senate next week.

When Lone Ord Collapsed at Grave

The steady composure that Lone Ord New York show girl, had maintained since the body of Jack Kraft, artist and her traveling companion, had been taken from the Mississippi river near New Orleans, was broken when New Orleans detectives cased her to view Kraft's body in its shallow grave near the river. The girl, shown here at the grave, fainted and upon being revived made a statement which is believed to implicate another man, with jealousy as the motive, but which officers did not make public.

Miss Ord first said Kraft had committed suicide by leaping from a New York-to-New Orleans steamer but when the body was found there was a bullet hole in his chest.

Varied Program At Rotary Club

Many Short Addresses Comprise Weekly Luncheon Meeting

A varied program of several short, interesting speeches was presented at today's Rotary club luncheon in the Barlow hotel.

Ed McCorkle, program chairman, spoke briefly on the spirit of Rotary; and a visiting Rotarian, Earl Harrison of Melvern, who formerly lived here, gave some interesting side-lights on the club work of that city.

John Martin made a humorous talk on the local aspect of stock market investments, particularly City Street securities, during the recent flurry in Wall Street.

Ray Anderson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was a guest on the club. Lynn Smith, Jack Eaves and Terrell Cornelius made short talks.

American Embassy Balks At Running Errands

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Members of the American diplomatic corps are often expected by fellow-countrymen visiting foreign countries for brief periods to perform strange functions. Presenting debutantes at court and arranging audiences with presidents is part of the day's work, but the corps points out when it comes to running errands there must be a bad somewhere.

Recently there arrived here an American conducting eight young men and women students. As soon as he had stepped over the threshold the embassy received a telephone call.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, my party has twenty pieces of baggage I want to get through the customs without examination. Have someone come from down and attend to it."

Explanations that in order to get such a courtesy a request would have to be made through official channels, day or two in advance and that furthermore, there was no one at the embassy available to "go right down" did not damp this man's faith he came back with:

"Well you can invite my party to the embassy for tea this afternoon then."

Natchez Will Observe Massacre Anniversary

NATCHEZ, Miss., Nov. 1.—(AP)—This old little city, which sits on a high bluff overlooking the Mississippi, November 28 will commemorate the two-hundredth anniversary of one of America's bloodiest Indian massacres.

Two hundred forty French pioneers were killed November 28, 1729, by a band of Natchez Indians. The Indians shot Father Du Poison, a Jesuit priest who had come to the settlement to minister to the ill in the disease-stricken outpost, and then butchered the rest of the inhabitants. Only two persons escaped.

The observance will include a service in St. Mary's cathedral and a pageant.

Robinson's Talk Evidently Stung

Arkansas's Comment On Cause of Market Break Brings Retort

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, characterized as "unfair and unjust" in the senate today the statement by Senator Robinson, Arkansas, democratic leader, placing the blame for the stock market collapse on the property statements of President Hoover, former President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon.

President Hoover, during all of his public career, the Indian asserted, had never encouraged anyone to buy stock. He added that it was entirely a personal matter if one decided to speculate in the stock market and said if the senator from Arkansas would have placed the treasury at the disposal of the New York stock market to save the situation then the "American people will thank God he is not the president."

Short Wave Fight Is Up To Radio Courts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—One of the most complicated radio controversies to be adjudicated by the court of appeals of the District of Columbia is the allocation of short waves for use by communication companies within the United States.

Six companies applied to the federal radio commission for wavelengths to dispatch public service messages, their networks to rival those of the wire service. Disatisfied with the commission's allocation, five companies appealed to the court on the ground that the assignments were not consistent with the merits of their claims.

The Universal Wireless Communications company was granted 40 channels for the establishment of a radio telegraph system linking 110 cities. It is the only applicant that did not appeal.

The appellants are RCA Communications, Inc., the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company, the Intercontinental Radio Telegraph company, the Wireless Telegraph and Communications company and the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Two Held for Trial Saw Out of 'Walls'

In Penitentiary for Safe Keeping, Two Make Get Away

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Two men escaped from the Arkansas penitentiary early today by sawing the bars from their cell window and then climbing over the walls. Raleigh Graham, 32, and A. J. Smith, 19, being held for safe keeping in connection with defrauding a Clarendon bank, were the two escaping. Graham, according to warden Todhunter, had served terms for various offenses in several state prisons.

The men were brought here from Clarendon following their capture after they had escaped from the Monroe county jail.

New Metal Airplanes for Army Air Corps

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A new type of American military observation plane, constructed of metal except for the covering of the wings and the tail surfaces, will be out into service early next year by the army air corps. Hereafter wings have been mostly of wood.

Seventy of the planes, seating two men and mounting three machine guns, are being built and deliveries will begin shortly after the first of the year. The planes will be equipped and are designed for a top speed of 150 miles an hour.

State Official To Be Guest of Honor

Model Heiress

Cazort, Lieutenant Governor, To Head Dairy Day Talks

Honor Guest at Event To Celebrate Arrival of Pure Breds

A DAIRY ENTHUSIAST

State Official Has Had Active Part In State Progress

Lion Lee Cazort, lieutenant governor, will be the principal speaker at a celebration here tomorrow marking arrival of the first car load of pure bred bulls ever shipped to Hempstead county. The day has been designated as "Dairy Day" and the Chamber of Commerce and citizens over the county interested in dairy development are taking part to make the occasion a success.

Other speakers of prominence over the state will be guests of the city as well as Mr. Cazort, among them Mr. Woodley, of the University of Arkansas, and Dr. John B. Nevitt, dairy specialist of the Missouri Pacific who aided County Agent Lynn Smith in selection of the car of animals.

The bulls, on arrival, will be placed on exhibition on the streets, later being turned over to those who will have charge of them. They will go on to each of a number of bull clubs formed in this territory and three of them to individuals who bought outright. The animals are from the best producing strain in the county and will go far toward producing a better strain of milk cows in southwest Arkansas.

Postoffice Soon Located At Okay

Name of Another Office Is Changed So "Okay" Will Stand.

Announcement is made that the new cement town, Okay, will soon have a post office of the same name and Joe R. Dowdle, of Mineral Springs, has been recommended for appointment as postmaster.

Over in Polk county there had been for years a rural postoffice by name Okay. In order for the cement village to secure that name it was necessary to change the name of Polk county office. This was done, the name being changed to Lost Corner and the name Okay given the new town near Hope.

Norris Offers His Censure Measure

Held Up for Short While At Request of G. O. P. Whip

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A resolution asking the condemnation of Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, was introduced in the senate today by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, but at the request of Senator Fess, of Ohio, republican, whose discussion of the resolution was postponed.

Senator Norris called attention to the resolution as privileged matter but said he would be glad to delay consideration temporarily if anyone requested it. When Senator Fess asked that it go over for a short time the Nebraska quickly consented.

Draws 15 Years On Guilty Plea

Oklahoman Admits Guilt and Court Imposes Light Sentence

FAYETTEVILLE, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Pleading guilty to an assault on a young woman here last July, William Howard, of Stigler, Oklahoma was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment by Circuit Judge Maples here today.

A representative of the girl's family is said to have agreed to the punishment fixed by the court though the offense carried a maximum penalty of death.

Judge Maples explained that he found it was reasonable for the fixing of the sentence and that prosecuting attorney John Combs had asked that the case be tried. "Since the injured parties did not ask the death sentence, it is a question as to whether or not it would be right to inflict it," the court said.

The young woman victim of the attack was visiting here at the time of the occurrence.

The Quorum Court

THE Hempstead County Quorum Court will meet Monday, November 11.

As the financial program of the county for an entire year is virtually determined at this one sitting of the levying court, it is an important date for every progressively-minded citizen.

Some time back The Star got into an argument with Judge John L. Wilson over an issue involving the farm and home demonstration agents. As we remember, it was more a matter of county finance than the principle of agricultural education, and as a newspaper we presumed merely to endorse the latter principle.

There was no hard feeling, of course, in a public argument; but we would earnestly remind the judge, and the county at large, that the principle of agricultural education has to be re-indorsed at each meeting of the Quorum Court.

We are informed this has been a good year for the Hempstead county farmer. Cotton may have been only fair, but truck crops commanded top prices, and last month the cheese factory posted an increase of two cents per pound for butterfat.

For the bulk of farm prosperity we are dependent, of course, upon the soil, the weather, and the energy of our people. Yet there is a fine edge which a business acquires through the use of the most modern methods. It is this principle which has persuaded sixty-three of the seventy-five counties of Arkansas to spend tax revenues for the maintenance of the county agents.

If you hark back only a generation you reach a period in American history when the expenditure of tax money for commercial or social purposes was unheard of. The nation maintained the congress and its political affinities, and the counties voted money with which to hold the criminal and civil courts. Nothing more. There were no departments for the improvement of agriculture, industry, schools or highways.

The federal government has taken immense strides forward. The states are not far behind. Nor do we want our own country—a dominant agricultural leader in Arkansas—to revert to the dark ages when a public dollar was a political dollar.

Judge Wilson impresses us as a careful public official. His main interest, perhaps, is to avoid entangling his county with a constitutional amendment which warns against current indebtedness. However, the relative importance of county expenditures, one compared with another, is constantly changing.

We would urge upon Judge Wilson and the Quorum Court the obvious fact that a county which has gone forward like agricultural Hempstead, cannot now go back. It should back up the county agents, and if possible, employ a dairying expert.

Plenty of Suckers Left

A CLEVELAND bank, to promote sound investments, featured so ludicrous a get-rich-quick scheme that it would be apparent to the simplest citizen. The bank placed in its window a highly colored poster advertising stock for sale in a fur farm to be operated without cost—the fur to be obtained from cats, who fed on rats, who fed on the skinned carcasses of the cats. At the end was a warning that this absurdity was not greater than the average get-rich-quick scheme. But the bank had to remove the poster because, despite the warning, so many persons asked to buy some of the stock. Suckers are still being born at the rate of one, if not more, every minute.—McCartain Gazette, Idabel, Okla.

Change Needed

THE 1,000,000 reindeer that inhabit the territory of Alaska have ceased to be wards of the U. S. Bureau of Education, and will hereafter be looked after by the governor of Alaska.

The news in that item, for most of us, of course, lies in the fact that these reindeer ever were cared for by the Bureau should have charge of the Alaskan reindeer herd is one of those governmental mysteries that the average man cannot hope to fathom.

There are dozens of parallel cases in Washington, and the fact that this one absurdity, at least, has been set right only emphasizes the need for a thoroughgoing governmental reorganization. Let us hope that this change heralds its beginning.

Now, Wouldn't It Stump You

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Lobbyists in the Grant administration were often able to recruit the aid of the president himself in furthering their schemes for public plunder. These lobbyists did not hesitate to attempt to bribe the speaker of the House or to offer the vice president a prosperous corporation job to count on after his term expired.

It seemed as if nearly everyone in public life were selling out to the highest bidder and those who protested the general practice were subject to ostracism and political attack. Cabinet members, senators, congressmen and innumerable lesser officials were the lobbyist's willing prey. Bribery was used even to obtain passage of the $7,000,000 Alaska Purchase bill.

The railroads maintained the most effective lobbies. A correspondent suggested that Congress adjourn permanently leaving the placard on the door: "The business of this establishment will be done hereafter in the office of the Pennsylvania Railroad."

The Worst of All

Several of the road's attorneys were in Congress. Claude G. Bowers, in "The Tragic Era," says "the lobby was more than ever open and insolent, that of the railroads, under the vigilant eye of Tom Scott, the most brazen and defiant of all." Attorney General Williams was regarded as the Pacific Railroad's own man.

The Credit Mobilier incident, involving the Union Pacific, was one of the major scandals of the time. Congress had given the Union Pacific $27,000,000 and 13,000,000 acres of land. Credit Mobilier was the name of the stock company used to milk the road of the huge subsidies granted it by the government. Congressman Oakes Ames was given stock to distribute among influential members of Congress as a precaution against an investigation. The bribery revelations involved Vice President Cullfax, Vice President-elect Wilson, a senator and the chairman of the most important House committees, including a future president, James A. Garfield. A stacked committee whitewashed all but Ames in its report.

Speaker James C. Blaine, one of the most distinguished statesmen of his time, was badly tarred in 876. Seven years previously Blaine, who had helped the Little Rock & Fort Smith Railroad with one of its land-grant bills, was permitted to sell a large amount of the road's bonds and stock and to keep $125,000 in bonds which should have gone to the customers as a personal commission, plus $32,000 brokerage commission.

When the road went broke and the bonds went bad the customers became incensed and the only way to avoid exposure for Blaine was to take back the bonds and reimburse the buyers.

Suddenly three railroads, including the Union Pacific, began to buy up the Little Rock & Fort Smith bonds. It was charged that they were saving Blaine's neck in return for his great legislative influence. Tom Scott, the Union Pacific's chief lobbyist, was an important figure in the deal. The facts damaged Blaine politically and probably kept him from the presidency.

President Grant's name figured in Jay Gould's attempt to corner the gold market. Instead of leaving it to a lobbyist, Gould himself had entertained Grant in royal fashion. Grant often helped the speculators and lobbyists. When a group of speculators was demanding that we seize San Domingo, Grant went himself to the Capitol and lobbied with senators for annexation. He accepted gifts from men who were here to seek profitable favors and privileges. He nearly always appeared to be on the side of the corrupt and opposed to those who protested corruption.

A New Jersey woman murdered her husband after living with him 49 years. The height of restraint.

"Vagabond King" Here On Nov. 30

Stage Production To Open Season Then at Saenger Theatre

The legitimate stage will be opened in Hope Saturday November 30, with "The Vagabond King," famed opera, it was announced today by Jack Eaves, manager of the Publix-Saenger theatre.

"The Vagabond King" will be followed by other attractions of equal merit, the names to be announced later, it was announced later, it was said at the Publix-Saenger office.

This is a George E. Wintz production, and with a cast of metropolitan talent touring the chief Southern cities, is expected to revive memories of other seasons among local players. Hope is regarded as one of the best "legitimate" cities in Arkansas, it is said.

Britain proposes to bar the mentally unfit from marriage. That ought to work out pretty well if the mentally unfit can be barred from the committees that will pass upon who is or isn't mentally fit.

Marriages Show Decrease In 1928

Report Shows But Few States In Union Have Increased Number.

WASHINGTON—Nov. 1. (AP)—The department of commerce announced today there were 1,182,497 marriages performed in the United States during 1928, as compared with 1,201,053 the previous year, or a decrease of 18,556 marriages, or 1.5 per cent.

During 1928, there were 195 divorces granted in the United States, as compared with 192,037 in 1927, representing an increase of 3,502 or 2 per cent. There were 4,226 marriages annulled in 1928, as compared with 4,255 in 1927.

On the basis of population estimates for the country of 120,013,000 on July 1, 1928, and 118,628,000 on the same date in 1927, the number of marriages per 1,000 population was 9.85 in 1928, against 10.12 in 1927; and the number of divorces per 1,000 population was .163 in 1928 against .162 in 1927.

While the net decrease in the number of marriages performed in the country as a whole was 1.5 per cent, the relative change in the different states ranged from a decrease of 15 per cent in Florida to an increase of 73.5 per cent in Nevada. This increase in Nevada, the report said, as well as an increase in Arizona, was due largely to a change in the marriage law of California requiring three days' notice to be given before issuance of a license.

JOYS AROUND SHOVER

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Gatherine and Mrs. Beulah Rice were in the Shover vicinity one day recently calling on friends. Mrs. Gatherine will be remembered as Miss Pearl Farmer.

Since the sad death of their father Edgar Laseter, his two sons Hoyt and Cecil have been staying with their grandfather Mr. John Laseter of Shover.

These of the children who spent a few hours Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sanford, were Mrs. Dottie Bearden and little son Glendon. Mrs. J. R. Gray, Miss Pauline J. Sanford and Silas and Harold Sanford. Mrs. Bearden remained for a few days visit.

Harold Sanford and family visited Saturday night and Sunday at A. A. Rogers in Hope.

George Johnson purchased a syrup mill from Arthur Rogers and contemplates making syrup this fall.

There will be preaching at Henry chapel next Sunday which is the regular day.

The tractor and grader with the operators have been busy the past week grading the roads south of Shover.

Mr. Rettig of Hope and father from Wichita Falls, Texas, and Silas Sanford called at H. B. Sanford's Sunday morning.

Hamp Huett and family and Mrs. J. R. Gray were Hope visitors Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Cobb spent Sunday at the Arthur Rogers home in Hope.

There's a real romance behind the 1929 Red Cross poster, to be featured in the annual Red Cross roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day—because the girl who posed for the 1928 poster and again this year is now the wife of Cornelius Hicks, the artist. They were married during the past year and, in addition to modeling, Mrs. Verma Hicks now finds time to keep up the household duties in their studio-home at Brooklyn. Here's the new 1929 poster.

Now summer's gifts are gone, the dainty rose no longer pours her perfume to her June; But still the leafless thornbush scarlet glows And sunshine floods the elm November moon.

Mrs. R. L. Harmon of Ozark spent a few hours in the city visiting with friends yesterday.

Mrs. Stuart Moore of Fort Worth, Texas, en route to Fort Smith was the overnight guest of Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Field.

Mrs. J. L. Ware of Bonham, Texas is spending some time in the city visiting with her sister, Mrs. A. L. Johnson.

Mrs. Ernest Wingfield entertained at Bridge yesterday afternoon at her home on North Pine street. Her guests were the members of the Thursday Bridge club and a few other friends. The card rooms were adorned with a quantity of lovely white American beauty roses and attractively arranged for three tables. Mrs. B. F. Ellington of Washington scored high for the guests, and received a dainty gift. The hostess served a most tempting plate lunch, with cookies and hot tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Tollett had as guests Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Lewis of Nashville.

H. T. Bennett is in Conway today visiting with his daughter, Miss Hope, and attending the "Dad's Day" celebration at Henderson-Hendrix College.

South Main street was the scene of much gaiety last evening with the annual parade of mysterious visitors, who like the flitting swallow and other birds of passage, honor our city with their presence once a year, and then pass into the silence, not to return until "spook" night next year. There were witches, fortune tellers, clowns, spooks of all sorts and sizes, black cats, goblins and such like, with whistles and songs in the parade and our newly finished pavement only added zest to the fun, for fun and a good time seemed to be the object of this particular bunch, we are glad to note that there were no evil spirits in this sections—the annual swamping of porch furniture and a few flower misplacements seemed to be the only "Whoopee" features attending the celebration. And we dare to assert that there were very few spirits in the disturbed quiet of the homes along the street, that did not respond to the enthusiasm of these merry-makers, and in their hearts, recall bygone days when they went forth on such a quest.

The members of the Pat Cleburne chapter of U. D. C. desire to express their sincere thanks through these columns to every individual and organization in the city who contributed in any way to the wonderful success of the state convention held in our city last week.

visiting with his son Albert, and attending the "Dad's Day" celebration in Henderson-Hendrix College.

The city P. T. A. Council held a most enthusiastic meeting yesterday afternoon at the City Hall, there being 58 members present, almost a perfect attendance. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. O. A. Graves, the president, and opened with the Lord's prayer in concert. Splendid reports were heard from the various committees of the four local congress units. Miss Milburn, principal of the Oglesby school led the discussion on a study course for the association and the council recommended the course prepared by the University of Arkansas. It was also recommended that the local unit assist in the annual sale of Tuberculosis seals next month. In the November meeting of the council, there will be a class in Parliamentary procedure led by Miss Beryl Henry, principal of the senior high school. All members of the association are invited to attend this class. Brookwood P. T. A. led in the entertainment.

Mrs. Charles Sarroll entertained at Bridge Wednesday evening at her home on West 5th street. The occasion was the birthday celebration of Mr. Harrell. The rooms were decorated with all the trimmings of Halloween suggestions, and the same motif was used in the tables and score pads of the four tables arranged for the players. High score favors were won by Mr. and Mrs. George Harrell, and after a series of pleasant games, the hostess served a delicious salad plate with punch.

Conspicuous among the many delightful Halloween pleasures last evening was the party by the combined rooms of Misses Cornelia Whitehurst and Merle Vick at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Dodd on South Elm street. The Dodd home was all aglow in the Halloween colors, with the pumpkins, jack-o-lanterns and crepe paper monstrosities, softened lights and all things that go with the Halloween season to make up that weird and mysterious feeling. The costumes were various and numerous, games and stunts were enjoyed throughout the evening and fruit cakes and hot chocolate helped to make the event one to be remembered.

The members of the Jewell-Wesley Bible class of the First Methodist Sunday school are urged to be present Sunday morning as business of importance will come before the class.

Italian Youths Rush for Army Cadetships

ROME, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Candidates for admission to Italy's two military academies, at Turin and Modena, were far in excess of the number of vacancies, figures compiled by the Ministry of War show.

The artillery proved to be the most popular branch of the service, no less than 347 young men seeking the 180 cadetships vacant in that arm. There were 274 aspirants for the 190 vacancies in the infantry, 190 for the fifteen places in the cavalry and 130 for the 55 in the engineers.

WHY, FINE! I'LL HAVE THE BOY RIG ONE UP. I'M ONLY TOO GLAD TO GET A RECOMMENDATION FROM UNCLE SAM.

New Television Plant On Air From Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Experimental short wave television broadcasts have been started by another Chicago station.

A license has been granted to W9XR, operated by the Great Lakes Broadcasting company, owners of WENR. At present it has a power of 500 watts, but ultimately it is planned to use 5,000.

An afternoon and evening schedule is in effect, from 3 to 4 o'clock and from 7 to 10 o'clock. The wavelength is the 100-kilocycles band between 2,850 and 2,950 kilocycles. At present pictures are scanned with 24 lines, from left to right and from top to bottom, with 15 pictures per second. Scanning is to be increased to 48 lines soon.

A special moving picture film makes up the "copy." It gives a number of circus views and geometric figures.

QUICK BREADS

Home-made bread is the most satisfying, the best tasting, the most fragrant, the most nourishing and the most economical food in the world.

Every mother should make bread at home not only to please her family's palate and to save money but to give her youngsters a nutritious, wholesome food.

In addition to making yeast breads and rolls there are so many delicious quick breads that the housewife can quickly make. To make these quick breads, time, money and ingredients can be saved by using self-rising flour.

Quick Breads Are Easily Made.

which is preleavened or prepared flour. Who doesn't like nut bread or for a change orange bread?

For nut bread proceed as follows:

1/2 cup sugar 1 cup milk
2 tbsp. fat 1 cup nut meat
1 egg 1 cup flour
1 1/2 cups self-rising flour

Mix the sugar, fat and egg in a bowl; beat until thoroughly blended; add the flour and liquid alternately, then add the nuts; pour into a greased bread pan, and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) about fifty minutes.

Irene Bordon, Vivacious Star, Happy Over Return of Curves

"Who Said Slat-Like Figure Was Beautiful?" Says Famous Stage Beauty

THE return of curves and the passing of the fence rail figure is good news to Irene Bordon, vivacious stage star and ardent exponent of the well-rounded figure. Standards of beauty that have been applied to women for centuries, she said, have never given place to the self-starved, emaciated form.

"Only in America has the thin form ever been accepted as a standard of beauty," Miss Bordon says. "In European countries such a figure would be regarded as a monstrosity, something to weep over. And now we are beginning to realize here in my adopted country that charm is best expressed by an abundance of feminine curves and rounded contours."

"It is a source of wonder to me that women have for one moment entertained a thought that the emaciated figure is attractive. Women admit they dress to please men, yet I have never heard one man go on record as admiring the flat-like figure."

Miss Bordon is glad that theatrical producers have turned thumbs down on the hipless, flat-chested chorus girl. Florence Ziegfeld, George White and other Broadway moguls of musical comedy, she said, are to be commended for their stand which will force frivolous minded young girls who want to become stage stars to give their bodies a nutritious, wholesome food.

"Curves and dimples are being sought by all the large producers this season," she continued, "and the slim maiden is in danger of professional ostracism as well as the still greater danger of a physical breakdown."

On the question of health, Miss Bordon can speak with authority. Her role in her latest success, "Paris," in which she has starred for the past year, is fraught with emotional climaxes. The mental and physical strain while facing an audience permits no relaxation, she said, and in a role of long duration there is an additional strain of effort to prevent the let-down, inevitable after a long successful run.

Irene Bordon

Only by maintaining the highest degree of health efficiency is it possible to play night after night to an audience increasingly exacting in its demands and for that reason, Miss Bordon added, she has no sympathy for the food faddists who urge the elimination of sugar and other essential energy building foods from the diet.

State Police Linked By Typewriter Mesh

The advantage of the criminal with a high-speed automobile will be offset in Pennsylvania by installation of a system of instantaneous communication among all police departments.

Thorough an appropriation of $200,000 by the legislature, one hundred cities and central points of the state police and highway patrol will be connected on January 1 by the telegraph-typewriter machine that has gained wide use in business, particularly by newspapers.

The discovery of a crime will be immediately flashed to all police headquarters, with all data that might aid in apprehension.

Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the state police, has selected cities along the two main thoroughfares of the state, the William Penn and the Lincoln highways, approximately 20 miles apart, for the aid in such matters as highway patrol.

The system will also be employed to aid in such matters as tracing lost airplanes, and advising aviators of weather conditions.

Bible Reading Rare In Higher Schools

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Only 7 per cent of the men and women in 23 colleges and universities read the Bible regularly, a survey by the Institute of Social and Religious Research reveals.

Fifty-seven per cent of the women read it regularly, and 39 per cent of the men. But 80 per cent of the men and 90 per cent of the women accepted the life of Jesus as an ethical standard for modern life.

One explanation of the decrease in Bible study is given by Dr. Thomas Arkle Clark, dean of men at the University of Illinois.

"Probably not so many Bibles are packed in freshmen's trunks (only a few years ago) as they were in the past," he said. "But I am not sure that the Bible is less seriously or generally read now than it was then."

"A good deal of the Bible reading with which I was familiar 40 years ago was conventional, routine, mechanical. Whatever such reading is done now, I believe, has in it a deeper purpose."

Success for Shawkey?

No doubt Bob Shawkey faces a tough job as manager of the Yankees. The team must go through a process of rebuilding and experimenting. Such a period has cost the reputations of many managers. You have to hand it to red-shirted Bob, however; he's game.

Right now the Yankees need pitchers. That is Bob's racket. He was always a smart pitcher. Away back in 1914, his first year as a regular with Connie Mack, Shawkey won 16 games and lost 1. He may develop one or two good hurlers to help the Yanks get by next year. But development of pitchers usually is a long process.

No Enemies

Shawkey is well-liked. Baseball men respect him. It is doubtful if he has a single enemy in baseball today.

The Yankees were meat for the Athletics this year. Several baseball men have said that now, with a manager who understands quite a bit of the Mackian strategy, the team may make a better showing against the A's in 1930. That, of course, is a wild guess, as all predictions about Mack's strategy must be.

Howly's Praise

Dan Howley, the new manager at Cincinnati, who faces no small job himself this year, praised Shawkey the other day in no uncertain words. "Shawkey is a regular fellow," said Dan. "He knows his baseball and ought to make a fine leader for the team."

Bob Changes Suits

As Shawkey takes the job, an interesting character who played an important part in the wonderful record established by the Yankees goes to Cincinnati—Bob Meusel. Here is a fellow the scribes among themselves call a "great guy." He is the man Miller Huggins once told, "Bob, you are just as good an outfielder as you want to be."

Bob is a quiet player, ordinarily. But in the New York-Pittsburgh world series, he showed himself to be a man of some parts after Catcher "Oil" Smith awakened his temper with a careless remark. Whatever Smith said to Meusel, it aroused Bob's fury.

"If I ever get to third base," Bob told Oil, "I'm going to steal home and I hope you are there waiting for me."

Just Like That

It happened. Meusel got to third base. And he came tearing in on the path to the plate like a tiger. A tiger, however, with his gleaming teeth on the soles of his shoes.

Smith saw the teeth. And dropped the ball.

Poor Promoters!

"I'll stake the fellow who can tell me where all the star attractions are coming from to keep these new fight arenas going this winter," declared Scotty Monteith, manager of Detroit's big arena, one of the finest in the country. "There'll be a lot of us poor promoters ready for the wash by the time the indoor season fades away before the warm spring breezes."

Monteith blames the fighters of today. The fight game has turned completely around inside of two years, he says. Once there were great scrapers and no big places in which they could get the money. Now the places are available but the fighters are absent.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Colonel T. H. Huston told a scout in 1920 he wanted a certain player in the Pacific Coast League.

And that the scout should bring him back if he had to buy the Vernon franchise to do it. . . . The player was Bob Meusel. . . . Jack Coombs and Eddie Plank were Bob Shawkey's early instructors. . . . Tony Canzoneri wants another shot at Al Singer. . . . A "soft touch" is an opponent that a boxer thinks he can top. . . . A couple of New York writers say Willie Davies of Charlestown, Pa., may be the next flyweight champion.

Miss Marion Meud, wealthy resident of Skyland, N. C., who died recently, left $2,000 for care of her cat.

One Japanese flour mill company purchases annually about 15,000,000 bushels of wheat on the Pacific Coast, the bulk of it from British Columbia.

Speed Boys Headline Big Game In Yale Bowl

AL MARSTERS

The schedule refers to it at Yale vs. Dartmouth but that game in the Yale bowl, Oct. 26 stacks up as just one grand clash between Al Marsters, Dartmouth, and Albie Booth, Yale. Lower left is shown Al dodging his way into the clear for a 30-yard run against Harvard. Upper left shows Albie starting on a 20-yard dash against Army.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—(AP)—It may be the Green Ghost or then again it may be the Bolt out of the Blue.

No matter how they are labeled Al Marsters of Arlington, Mass., and Dartmouth; Albie Booth of New Haven and Yale figure to put on one of the most spectacular gridiron duels of the season in the wide open spaces of the big Eli bowl Nov. 2.

Marsters runs his team from quarterback. Booth is listed as a half-back but he dominates the team from the moment he enters the game.

Dartmouth, with Marsters fulfilling the promise of his sophomore year of 1927, has routed Columbia and Harvard in advance of the charge into New Haven. Inspired by Booth, Yale has come back after losing to Georgia, whipped Brown and Army in succession. The Elis have a fine line, with a great tackle in Vincent but without Booth they look like just a football team.

The championship hopes of both the Green and the Blue are at stake in this battle, as well as the All-American aspirations of Marsters and Booth.

If they had a "most valuable player"

YALE HOLDS EDGE

Dartmouth has never beaten Yale. In seven games played back in the Mauve decade, the Green failed to score. In the four contested since the war, Dartmouth's best was a 14-4 tie in 1924. The rival records:

1894	Yale 113 Dartmouth 0
1895	Yale 28 Dartmouth 0
1896	Yale 34 Dartmouth 0
1897	Yale 26 Dartmouth 0
1898	Yale 42 Dartmouth 0
1899	Yale 16 Dartmouth 0
1900	Yale 17 Dartmouth 0
1901	Yale 14 Dartmouth 14
1902	Yale 14 Dartmouth 7
1903	Yale 19 Dartmouth 0
1904	Yale 18 Dartmouth 0

Each has scored about two-fifths of his team's points, with Marsters, collecting 102 of Dartmouth's high total of 256 and Booth has contributed 52 to Yale's total of 124.

Except that each has the faculty of inspiring his team, especially so in the case of the Blue terror, Booth and Marsters have little in common; tactics are concerned. Booth is a so far as style of running, build and sophomore and a welterweight, barely scaling 141 pounds. Marsters is a senior and a heavyweight at 182. It goes without saying that they are elusive, but Booth is more of an artful dodger, scuttling through holes like a toy terrier. Marsters is more of a "power runner" of the type of Red Grange, with a deceptive change of pace.

Both are triple threats, for they can kick as well as pass.

Editor, The Star:

I take The Hope Star, my home town paper, and get one every day. I like getting letters from home. I have some of my neighbors the paper to read. They seem not to believe the report of Mr. Laseter's watermelons. I am mailing him a letter to ship me one of his melons. I hope I have not waited too late.

Bastrop, Louisiana, does not know what real watermelons are. All the best melons we get are raised in Arkansas. I am bound to boost Arkansas for fine melons and sweet potatoes.

We have a fine town. Bastrop is growing every day. We have two paper mills, a bag plant, chemical plant, and quite a lot of other industrial labor going on here, such as carbon plants and gas wells inside of five miles of here.

We had a nice fair in our town, but still I notice a lot of the display was not raised in this section.

The Avenging Parrot

© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

By Anne Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Rival Wives," etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Through the influence of his uncle, Police Commissioner O'Brien, Bonnie Dundee, student of criminology, gets a job as "cub" detective under Lieutenant John Strawn of the homicide squad of Hamilton and takes a room incognito at Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house to be near a Mrs. Emma Hogarth, who has written the police for protection, declaring her life and money are in danger, and throwing suspicion on Emil Evrier, former border.

On the third floor with Dundee are Daisy Shepherd, sales woman; Jewel Briggs, stenographer, and Tilda Kossman. At dinner he meets Mr. and Mrs. Sharp, Cora Barker, pianist at a local theatre, Walter Styles, proprietor of a small haberdashery; Norma Paige, his fiancée; Bert Magnus, an amateur scenario writer, and Henry Dowd, a newspaper out of work.

Dundee reflects that this is a harmless group when the cry of "Murder!" rings out. Dusty, Mrs. Rhodes' worthless husband, assures them the cry came from Capt. Mrs. Hogarth's parrot. Dundee then hears of the woman's misanthropy, how she is room-bound on account of illness, and of her constant change of her will to name a new favorite.

Norma, her latest mistress, who fears she will lose out because of her engagement to Styles, agrees to introduce Dundee that night. When Magnus says he would like to meet her too, Cora, who is in love with him, pleads with him to defer his visit. Bonnie is able to get only a few private words with Mrs. Hogarth on account of her many callers. When he leaves, Norma and Styles go to her door. Dundee tells Magnus Mrs. Hogarth wants to see him. Returning from police headquarters at 12:20, he finds Mrs. Hogarth's door unlocked, and that she has been checked to death by a black scarf used to cover the eyes of Capt. her parrot. Coroner and finger-print expert arrive and the investigation begins.

Strawn sends plainclothesmen out to find Sevier and Dusty. He stations Dundee behind a screen in the murder room and announces he is ready to begin quizzing the boarders, all of whom may be suspects.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

"Mr. Dowd, sir," a uniformed policeman announced to Lieutenant Strawn.

"Just a minute, Doyle. Is Payne around?"

"Talking to Mrs. Rhodes in the hall."

parently, if the murderer found what he was looking for. She was supposed to have a pretty big wad of cash hidden in this room, and if she did have it, it's gone. Look for it. Did she say anything to you about Liberty Bonds, stocks or any other kind of negotiable paper, Dundee?" he called to the young man stationed behind the wash basin screen.

"No, chief. She used the word 'money' several times, but didn't mention any stocks or bonds," Dundee answered.

"All right, Payne. Look for money, and if you find any, besides petty cash, let me know, but don't touch it. Now tell Doyle to bring Dowd in."

With Mrs. Hogarth's tablet of cheap lined writing paper on his knee and a pencil poised, Bonnie Dundee watched through one of the joinings of the three-panel screen as Henry Dowd was ushered into the room.

To the diffidence which had characterized this very commonplace looking man of near middle-age, when Dundee had observed him at the dinner table that evening, was now added a mild, almost apologetic mixture of apprehension and excitement. He came in dubbing at his forehead with a fresh white handkerchief, and as Strawn addressed his first question, took off his piner and began to polish the lenses nervously.

"Well, Dowd, you know what's happened here tonight. That's your room about 9, after sitting on the hear or see anything tonight that might throw light on the tragedy?" Strawn asked briskly.

The pale grey eyes blinked twice before Henry Dowd carefully adjusted the glasses upon his nose.

"No, sir," he answered. "That is, nothing to speak of."

"Then perhaps you'd better speak of it," Strawn snapped.

"Well, sir, I was asleep."

"When did you go to bed?"

"About 10 o'clock, as usual. I'm

"No, just squawking, as if it was sore about something," Dowd answered. "I've heard it a good many times, though this is the first time I've ever laid eyes on it. I didn't hear anything else, and didn't think anything of it, anyway, so I turned out my light and went right back to sleep. I was hardly what you'd call real awake—just roused enough to realize I'd left my light on. It hangs over the head of my bed and I just reached up and turned it off. That's all I heard, sir, and I didn't see anything."

"By the way, Dowd, where did you come from?"

Again the handkerchief dabbed at a moist brow. There was an appreciable pause before Henry Dowd answered: "Des Moines, Iowa. I represented a small manufacturing com-

Folks, the human body is just like a good car, everything must be in good working order if you expect to get the best performance out of either. You can't expect to feel 100% if your liver is out of order, your stomach upset, nerves jumpy or bowels tied up. You must build up your vital forces and your weak, weary dependant men and women who have been doctoring for ages trying to get back the vim and endurance of earlier years will be astonished, delighted and amazed to see how quickly strength, energy and vitality come back thru the use of Tanlac.

Go to your druggist now and get a bottle of Tanlac. Millions of folks have started back on the road to youth, health and happiness with this world-famous tonic and there is no reason why you, too, can't begin today to rebuild your worn-out tissues and revitalize your entire system.

Your money back if you are not speedily helped by a fair trial of this world-famous medicine.

MINER KEEPS IN GOOD SHAPE

Suffered From Sick Stomach Until He Began To Take Black-Draught.

Cambla, Va.—"For many years, I was a coal miner, and worked every day in the mines," says Mr. Silas Hamblin, of this place. "This life was very confining, and my health was not good. I suffered with gas, and often had sick stomach, due to constipation. 'My breath would get bad, and often I would get up in the morning with an awful taste in my mouth. My skin was yellow, and I felt pretty poorly generally. 'An old friend recommended that I try Black-Draught for this, and because he spoke of it so highly, I bought some. I found it an excellent medicine, and have used it ever since, whenever I needed anything for constipation. 'I keep a box of Black-Draught in the house, and I find that a small dose, taken occasionally, keeps me in good shape. 'Thousands of other men and women find 'Theodore's Black-Draught of great help in relieving and warding off common ailments, due to constipation, indigestion and biliousness. Price 25¢. NA-262

JUDGE US BY THE PARADE—IT'S DIFFERENT

Mrs. Hogarth's several visitors that evening.

"In here, you mean?" Dowd answered meticulously. "Well, I heard people laughing and talking and I heard the parrot talking, too, but I didn't pay any attention. I was reading, and I wasn't interested anyway."

"How well did you know Mrs. Hogarth?" Strawn demanded suddenly.

"Why, I didn't know her at all," Dowd answered. "I'd never met Mrs. Hogarth, and I only happened to see her once, going down the hall toward the bathroom. I didn't see her face then—just her back, but I knew who it was, because I'd heard the folks downstairs describe her as—well, pretty fat, sir."

"You also heard the folks downstairs say that Mrs. Hogarth had a lot of money hidden in her room, didn't you, Dowd?" Strawn asked levelly.

Dowd flushed, took off his glasses again and wiped them, then nervously before replying: "Yes, I heard something to that effect, though I wasn't interested."

"So money doesn't interest you. You must be quite flush yourself, then. By the way, what do you do?"

Dundee watching intently from his hiding place, saw Henry Dowd's thin, commonplace face go suddenly very pale. The hand which dabbed the handkerchief upon his forehead, higher than nature had intended it to be, because baldness had begun to attack the limp, straight hair, shook visibly. Dundee dropped his eyes to his notes. He had no relish for the third degree, no matter how mildly it was administered.

"—the fact is," Henry Dowd confessed haltingly, "I'm—well looking for an opening. I'm a—salesman."

"What line?" Strawn snapped.

"Well, in my time, I've sold a good many things, first and last—vacuum cleaners, aluminum ware, brushes, school children's encyclopedia—"

"House to house canvasser, eh?"

How long you been here—looking for an 'opening'?"

"I arrived in Hamilton a week ago today," Dowd answered humbly. "I haven't yet formed a-a connection here."

"And yet you weren't at all interested in the story of Mrs. Hogarth's hoard, hidden in the very room next to yours?" Strawn demanded.

"No, sir, I wasn't. I had my own troubles to think about—"

"Troubles?" Strawn pounced.

The harassed man went even paler. "Being out of a job in this middle of summer, and a stranger in town," he explained with a little flash of spirit.

"By the way, Dowd, where did you come from?"

Again the handkerchief dabbed at a moist brow. There was an appreciable pause before Henry Dowd answered: "Des Moines, Iowa. I represented a small manufacturing comcern known as The Housewife's Friend Corporation. They made up a little kit of kitchen tools, including an implement that could pure potatoes and apples and cut them in fancy shapes—"

"Where are they located?"

"Nowhere, now," Dowd answered wearily. "The company failed, and I was out of work for several weeks. Then I came to Hamilton, because I'd heard times were good here."

"Where did you live in Des Moines?" Strawn interrupted impatiently.

"At—at No. — Moulmain Ave."

Dowd, replied with obvious reluctance.

Strawn regarded the badgered man for a long minute through narrowed eyes. Then, abruptly: "You're sure you heard nothing but the squawking of the parrot, Dowd? No footsteps, no voices, no sounds of objects being thrown about?"

"I didn't hear a thing but the parrot," Dowd replied obstinately.

"Sure it was the parrot?"

"It thought so at the time. I'd heard it squawk before," Dowd answered.

"Could the noise you heard have been Mrs. Hogarth trying to scream for help?" Strawn suggested.

"It sounded like the parrot to me," insisted Dowd, sullenly.

"What time was this?"

"I don't know. I didn't look at my watch. As I said, I was just roused up enough to realize I'd left my light burning, and to reach up and turn it off. I was asleep again almost instantly. I guess, and didn't know anything else till a man knocked on my door and told me to get up, that Mrs. Hogarth had been murdered."

"All right, Dowd. You'll be wanted for the inquest, of course, so don't leave Hamilton to look elsewhere for work. Do you plan to stay on here in this house?"

Why, yes, My board is paid up for this coming week," Dowd answered.

Old Astor Dining Room To Be Put In New Hotel

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP). To preserve a quaint tradition, the old dining room of John Jacob Astor will be preserved in the New Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

When William Waldorf Astor moved to England in the early '30s and became a baronet he decided to wreck the home of his forebears at Thirty-third street and Fifth Avenue rather than let it fall in unknown hands. He created the Waldorf-Astoria on the site, and stipulated that the historic family dining room should be taken from the house and set up in the hotel.

Now it is to be transported to that new hotel, there to be used for small social occasions. The woodwork is black walnut, carved in superb early Victorian elegance, bearing the carved initials of the house of Astor.
